Coaching Philosophy:

My philosophy is based on the integration of the four pillars of the game (technical, tactical, physical, and psychological) being taught into every team. I firmly believe in letting the game be the teacher and my role as coach in the being the facilitator. Development is the main focus for every team and player not wins and losses. A strong emphasis is made for players to make their own decisions and to be creative in their own right. Having fun, integrity, and playing with passion are fundamental principles that I try to instill and model at every level. Let the players play and keep it simple!
